

Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences

About us

Future Students

Joining our Faculty means making the right choice to access one of its highly specialised fields that enable:

1. The development of your personality at the cultural, scientific and artistic levels.
2. The acquisition of high-level knowledge in both the introductory and speciality modules.
3. Access to an internationalised education opening the door to various other training courses in different universities and partner institutions.
4. The mastery of new skills preparing for today's most current jobs in innovative and value-added sectors.

Programmes

- Licence

Translation

Requirements

1. Baccalaureate or equivalent degree
2. Examination of the application file
3. Written examination
4. Interview

- Master

- Corporate and Institutional Communication
- Management and Tourist Valorization of the Euro-Mediterranean Patrimony
- Translatology and Translation Theories.

Requirements

1. Bachelor's degree or equivalent in humanities and social sciences
2. Examination of the application file
3. Written examination

4. Interview

Opportunities

The training courses offered by the FHSS provide many opportunities in promising areas of the future, such as:

- Communication manager (companies, local and regional authorities, public institutions, cultural institutions, associations)
- Digital communication professions
- Executive Assistant of communication.
- Cultural Heritage Development Officer
- Manager of Cultural Foundations
- Cultural mediator
- Designer of cultural strategies
- Freelance translator
- Certified translator
- Translator for national and international organisations.

Partners

IREST - University Panthéon Sorbonne Paris 1

Faculty Members

Prof. Rachid Benfares

Prof. Camélia Kerkour

Prof. Housseine Bachiri

Prof. Abderrahim Amghar

Prof. Malika Kettani

Prof. Farida Bouassoune

Laura Suarez Campos

Mobility and exchanges

A significant number of our students are currently on international mobility programmes, notably at the Sorbonne - Nouvelle Paris 3 University and the University of Lorraine in Metz. The duration of these programmes varies between six months and one year. Our Faculty makes of mobility, an essential path to openness and enrichment, a vital option in the training of its students.

Activities

The FHSS regularly participates, within the framework of the university's THINK THANK, in reflection activities and debates on issues relating to cultural heritage, mobility and territorial governance.

Presentation

FHSS occupies a central position within EUROMED. It is assigned two primary missions. On the one hand, to ensure the teaching of languages and modules relating to Euro-Mediterranean culture and civilisation for all the students of the other institutions of the university. Thus, it plays an essential role in training students in communication skills, and in appreciating the values of intercultural dialogue, citizenship, and education. On the other hand, FHSS offers its students, in addition to the cross-disciplinary courses, a range of innovative training courses focused on:

- Corporate communication, digital marketing and social networks, and sociology of the media.
- Mediterranean cultural heritage and its importance for tourism promotion and the creation of tangible and intangible wealth.
- Translation and its significance for national and international organisations, territorial planning, and circular economy.
- Translatology and translation theories.

Dean

Prof. Abderrahman Tenkoul

Assistants

Saloua Lazrak

Asmae Hannouta